A Monster of His Own

by AmandeBw

Summary

Will has always been scared of his monsters, but now there's not much for him to be scared of... He knows the scariest monster out there will protect him.

Will had always feared his monsters, wether they were real or a side-effect of his encephalitis. But after being with Hannibal for three years, Will knew he had nothing to fear. He had, after all, the worst monster of all as his protector. And he knew that his lover would protect him until his last breath. The good doctor was nothing short of possessive.

So when people insulted him, called him a gold-digger or a slut he didn't pay them any attention. He fully knew that by the end of the month they'd be dead and their flesh in his plate. That's why, when serial killers became infatuated with him -Will was seriously wondering if he was a magnet for murderers- he knew that the poor fools would never even reach him before Hannibal tore them to shreds. Just like when the nightmares came, haunting him, he knew that Hannibal would wake him up and take care of him, sending him back to a peaceful sleep.

But even knowing this, Will never told a soul. Not good old Jack, who would arrest his love without a thought, not sweet Alana, who would urge him to run and tell Jack, and not even his protector, who would lock him up for weeks until Will could convince him of his faithfulness.

Nevertheless, with all the protection he had, Will had never expected someone to actually be able to kidnap him. Unfortunately, the man hadn't taken him because of who he was, but because of how he looked. This meant he hadn't popped up on either the FBI's radar or Hannibal's… Will almost pitied the man for what Hannibal would do to him when he found them. His possessive lover would delight in torturing the man for weeks for even daring to touch him. Really, wannabe rapist/stalkers should do their research a bit more before picking a victim.

That's why he wasn't all that surprise when, on the very day he was dragged to the man's home, Hannibal arrived mere hours later to his cell, dragging his kidnapper -who looked as if a wolf had mauled him- and covered in blood.

Will could only look at his cannibalistic lover before he saying, with contempt in his voice, "I love you, but there's no way we're eating him. His flesh isn't even good enough to serve as dog food." Hannibal just stared at him, shocked -and that wasn't something you saw everyday- before his gaze turned into his usual fond one and he replied, "Of course my dear Will, I'd never dare to feed you such trash."
